

Dear Government? Dear pupilpath company???

After a thorough look at the company's privacy policy, we have many questions and concerns, regarding the security of the data previously stored upon the transferring of the company as well as during the outage and hacking incidents in 2022.

In January 2022, the hackers were able to have access to "students' names, birthdays, ethnicities and English-speaking, special-education and free-lunch statuses." Not only was this information not consensually given to anyone outside of PupilPath, the security breach impacted the personal data of minors, including those under 13.

Points:

- >unwavering commitment to the pledge and then being the first and only one removed
- >"required to remove because not authorized for distribution" (required by who?, no active(?) attempt on their end to remove from internet, apk still available for installation)
- >Privacy policy LAST update was in 2017, this was even before the hack
 - >also tells us to check it for updates before ever use
